

LAKE COUNTY TO RECEIVE $49,647 OF STATE GAS TAX

$19,000 To Be Used
In Laying New Highway

TO COMPLETE 173

Announcement was made here today that Lake county within the next few days will receive approximately $49,647.36 as its initial money from the state gasoline tax.

Since the gas tax injunctions were withdrawn the state has been placed in a position to release the 1929 collection of $9,929,171, which amount will be portioned out so that the state highway department will get two-thirds of it or $6,619,448 and Chicago is to receive approximately $1,350,408 or 40.8 per cent. Lake county, based on the automobile licenses sold, is eligible for .015 per cent of $49,647.36.

Route 173, First Paving Project

Completion of route 173 will be the first paving to be undertaken as purely a state project, according to a report sent out from Springfield. This highway will connect Zion and Rockford via Antioch, Richmond, Hobron, Harvard, Pollard Grove, and Caledonia. The first work, it is understood, will be done in the vicinity of Richmond where a freeze-up halted work late last fall. The heaviest paving program in the history of the Chicago area will be carried to completion this spring, summer, and fall, according to reports. While the paving record for the state is not expected to meet that of the 1921 and 1928, the work for the Chicago district will probably number more miles than any other year.

DISTRICT CENSUS SUPERVISOR GIVES OUT INFORMATION

Prospective Enumerators
Given Advice Relative To Their Duties

SWORN TO SECRECY

Information relative to the 1930 census which will prove valuable not only to the enumerators, but also to those who will be interviewed, was made public this week by Mrs. Estelle Northam, the district supervisor of census.

Valuation Question Difficult One
Among the specific questions about which Mrs. Northam gave out information was the one relative to the valuation of property. Home owners as a rule are reluctant to evaluate their property due to the fact that they fear complications with the tax estimate. Mrs. Northam brought a happy message to these victims when she stated that no tax officials would ever see the evaluations, since the enumerators must keep all census data secret. The basis of valuation should be the amount which the house or property would bring should it be put up for sale, the supervisor avowed.

The census takers who are selected to work will be required to work a full eight-hour day and will be expected not to hold another job during their tenure. They will receive four cents a name in congested districts and six cents in the farm areas where names are harder to secure.

Ideal Enumerator Should Be Alert
The ideal enumerator is alert, discreet, and diligent and he must write a legible hand, should be quick at detecting a false answer, and should be clever in ferreting out the truth in the face of difficulties. Mrs. Northam pointed out. In addition it is valuable that he speak a foreign language. In applying for the job, she asks that the applicants mention languages they can speak.

Samplers of the farm schedules, which will differ greatly from the city outlines, will be sent to the farmers of the county by H. C. Glickerson, of the Farm Bureau. Those farmers who fail to receive schedules within the next two weeks will find copies of them at the Farm Bureau office in Grayslake.

W. J. VAN DUZER IS VICTIM OF HIT AND RUN DRIVER

Ed. Kelly, Lake Villa, Picks Him Up; Is In Dazed Condition

RECOVERY IS ASSURED

W. J. Van Duzer, Antioch, lies in his home today suffering from severe bruises and cuts sustained when he was knocked down by a hit-and-run driver while walking south on North Main street Sunday afternoon.

When picked up by Ed. Kelly, Lake Villa, the victim was in a dazed condition and it was not known how long he had lain there, although it is logical that it couldn't have been longer than a few minutes due to the heavy traffic that day. The machine which hit him was also going south and it is believed that the driver was going at such a high rate of speed that he was unable to control the machine and consequently it swerved into Van Duzer.

The victim was taken to the office of Dr. Williams and from there to his home, where he is recovering as rapidly as can be expected, according to the physician's report this morning.

Wetzel Signs New Lease For Hardt's Chevrolet Building

Difficulties surrounding right-of-way and building alterations in the Hardt Chevrolet building were cleared into yesterday when L. M. Wetzel of the Wetzel Chevrolet Sales signed a new lease for one year.

With the completion of the new entrance and elevator by Contractor Shiley, Mr. Wetzel will be enabled to continue business as usual within the next few days. Continuation of the lease seemed doubtful a few weeks ago when access to the building was cut off by building operations of the Chalmers O'Leary laundry who own the adjoining property.

Miss Rice To Sign Libertyville Contract

Miss Hedvig Rice, teacher of music and English in the Antioch Township high school for the last three years, has received an offer to teach the same subjects in the Libertyville high school next year. A substantial increase in salary over what she has received here makes the offer a very lucrative one.

Miss Rice admitted late yesterday that she expected to affix her name to the Libertyville contract today.

A regular meeting of the Champaign Lake Parent-Teachers' association was held at the school house Tuesday night. Plans relative to the box social which is scheduled to be held at the school March 18, were discussed. A program consisting of several musical numbers and recitations was rendered after which refreshments were served.

Mrs. Sarah Emmons Celebrates Ninety- Second Birthday

Showered with cards, letters, congratulatory telephone messages, plants, bouquets, and cake, Mrs. Sarah Emmons, who has the distinction of being Antioch's oldest resident, celebrated her ninety-second birthday anniversary at her home on Lake street Monday. A large and handsomely decorated birthday cake, which bore 92 candles, was given her by the Lux and A. B. Johnson families. Among those who did not forget to send their greetings to this grand old lady was Mrs. E. B. Williams, who is now living in Melbourne, Florida. Mrs. Emmons has recovered sufficiently from her recent fall to be able to sit in her wheel chair.

HIGH SCHOOL SENIOR SPEAKS TO F. F. OF A. AT ILLINOIS MEET

Homer Edwards Surveys
Accomplishments of Local Branch

"Our organization is not only organized for promotion of practical agriculture but also to develop the social side of a well rounded life," said Homer Edwards, a senior in the Antioch Township high school, when speaking on the "Activities of the Future Farmer" at the thirty-fifth annual session of the Illinois Farmers' Institute held at Galesburg, February 18, 19 and 20. He had reference to the local chapter of the Future Farmers of America.

By way of giving an explanation of the aims of the Antioch group, he enumerated the promotion of a state oratorical contest, the encouragement of state encampment, and the building of a constructive organization program as the problems which are new in the limelight for immediate consideration.

"At Antioch our greatest project is that of encouraging 4-H club work. Our teacher and club leader reports that this summer we will have about 60 boys enrolled in 4-H club work. About 25 of these will be dairy calf projects, which is a part of an attempt on our part to better the herds of our community," the young enthusiast continued.

Survey Shows Constructiveness
A survey of the accomplishments of this organization during the past year shows that constructiveness was the outstanding characteristic of the projects worked on among which are home beautification, eradication of pests, and the loaning of money to those members who desire to improve their livestock at home.

Prin. W. C. Petty talked to the members of the Wauconda Woman's club at the high school there on Tuesday.

6 TO BE ELECTED TO VILLAGE OFFICE AT APRIL ELECTION

Voters Will Choose Clerk,
Treasurer, Magistrate,
Three Trustees

ALSO TWO LIBRARY DIRECTORS

Village Clerk Harry A. Isaacs has posted notices to the effect that the village election for the choosing of three trustees, a clerk, treasurer and police magistrate will be held on Tuesday, April 15. Two library directors for three year terms are also to be elected.

Ten expiring this year are those of E. O. Hawkins, H. J. Vos and Roy L. Murrie, trustees; clerk, Harry A. Isaacs, and treasurer, J. E. Brook. The office of police magistrate was made vacant through the death of Harold Gelstrup, who was elected to that office in 1929.

March 11 Last Day for Filing
In compliance with the new law requiring candidates for village offices to file their petitions 35 days prior to the election, Clerk Isaacs has made it plain that the last day for filing will be March 11.

City Briefs

The Antioch Oil company recently installed a new Wayne gasoline pump at their filling station. It is of the latest type and is an improvement in every sense of the word. The pump electrically operates at the speed of 20 gallons per minute, being able to pump 100 gallons without a stop.

Mrs. Benlah White, who has resigned her position as stenographer at Marshall Field's, has accepted one as private secretary for the North Shore Material Co. at Libertyville.

Coach G. G. Reed took Howard Mastine and Dorr Cremin to Evanston Tuesday night to see a physician at Northwestern university, relative to the injuries they received while playing basketball. They were accompanied by Fuchs and Turk. While there the five of them saw the Minnesota-Northwestern game.

Mrs. Ann Sheen Dies At Her Home in Salem Following Long Illness

Following an extended illness, Mrs. Ann Curtis Sheen died at her home in Salem Thursday morning.

The deceased, who was born in Salem, September 29, 1860, was united in marriage to John Sheen on February 22, 1882, at which time they moved to the home in Salem where she has lived ever since.

She is survived by six children, Miss Mary Sheen, Salem; Mrs. Grace Miller, Chicago; Mrs. Leora Vincent, Genoa City; and Clarence, John, and Willis, Salem. Her husband preceded her in death. Mrs. Sheen, who was the eldest of her brothers and sisters, outlived them all.

Funeral services were held at the home on Saturday afternoon. Rev. Phillip Bohl, who officiated, was assisted by S. E. Pellock. Burial was in Liberty cemetery.

"THE DISAPPOINTED JUNTO" A TRAGEDY

Time: Monday Morning.
Place: On Main Street Near the Hall of Fame.
Characters: 11 of Antioch's Sages, Philosophers, and Idle Personages; Bernie; Bystanders.

Act I, Scene 1: The door of the Hall of Fame is padlocked; standing near are several Antiochians who have just come from "the fiery furnace, of domestic tribulation". Some are smoking their pipes volubly, while others are inhaling the smoke slowly and tranquilly as they listlessly muse on village gossip.

Act I, Scene 2: There is a mysterious silence; the time is going fast; and Prop. hasn't arrived on the scene. What can be the matter? Members of the perpetual club swell up to noble heights as they scan Main street in an attempt to spot the long lost captain.

Act II, Scene 1: Bernie drives up to the curb in a high powered machine; the "juntors" have a vague apprehension stealing over them; they perceive a familiar figure; they gaze at him until his heart must have turned within him; by degrees their awe subsides; but still they stare at him with equal marks of surprise.

Act II, Scene 2: Their whispers and remarks of disappointment are a perfect Babylonish jargon to the bewildered Bernie.

Act III, Scene 1: He goes up to the door; removes the padlock; and enters the Hall of Fame, entirely ignorant of how disappointed the "juntors" are because the trick they had pulled was a failure—Prop. didn't show up and Bernie didn't get the joke.

Act III, Scene 2: Bystanders began to look at each other, and, with significant, tap their fingers against their foreheads and give the "juntors" the horse laugh.

AUCTION SALES INDICATE BACK-TO- FARM MOVEMENT

Idle Farms Being Equipped —Spirited Bidding Brings
High Prices

A back-to-the farm movement is indicated in the trend of two of the largest public auction sales held this season in Southern Wisconsin.

Both were conducted near the Racine-Kenosha county line just north of here. Many farms which have been idle the past year are being equipped with stock and machinery, the high prices resulting from spirited bidding indicate. Farmers are going back to the farm.

Danzy Sheen, who is moving to California, was one of the owners whose personal property was dispersed, while the other sale was held by Herbert Strell, who is moving to North Dakota. Both sales were under the management of the Wisconsin Sales corporation with Col. L. C. Christensen and Norman Christensen as auctioneers.

At the Sheen sale the entire herd of 35 cattle averaged $141. Top cow was a grade Guernsey which sold to Alvin March of Bristol for $197.50. Gus Volz of Silver Lake paid $174 for high horse. Oats brought 50 cents, barley $2, silage $15 a foot, hay $18.50 a ton, chickens $1.50 each. The large line of machinery brought high prices.

Mr. Strell's herd of 55 cattle averaged $153 for grade cows, while hofers brought from $40 to $77.50. Top cow, a grade Holstein and her calf sold to August Lehmann of Raymond for $225. Several reached the $200 mark. Aged horses brought $150, silage $18.50 a foot, oats 61 cents a bushel, barley $1. Exceptionally high prices were paid for all farm machinery.

Village Marshal Simonson reports that he has a number of radiator caps that were found on the streets, some of them in the vicinity of the Crystal theatre. These were probably taken from cars Tuesday night by pranksters or cranks who thought it

ANTIOCH LUMBER AND COAL CO. BUYS THE H. R. ADAMS COMPANY

Merger Completed Monday
—Ten Year Lease Is Given

A deal for the merger of Antioch's two lumber companies was completed Monday when Herb J. Vos, acting for the Antioch Lumber & Coal Co., of which he is president, purchased the business and stock of the H. R. Adams Lumber Co., from Nason E. Sibley, who has acquired the holding of his three partners in the Adams company, including stock, building and real estate, a week previous.

The purchase by Mr. Vos and his associates includes only the business and stock, and a ten year lease was taken on the buildings and real estate.

The new owners will take possession Monday.

Man's Moral Integrity Higher Today, Speaker Tells Fathers and Sons

Rev. Peterson Sees Awakened Manhood Put To Greater Usefulness

That modern men are travelling in a path of greater rectitude and moral integrity, especially regarding their relations with the opposite sex, was the keynote of an address by Rev. W. R. Peterson, associate pastor of the First Methodist church of Kenosha, Tuesday night at the Father and Son banquet held in the Antioch Methodist church.

Women Objects of Leering Eyes
"In spite of radical reforms in dress, and greater liberties enjoyed by women of today, they were never held in higher respect than they are today," Rev. Peterson asserted. "Women are safer today than ever before," the pastor continued, and cited the days "way back when" no self-respecting woman would pass a barber shop to be the object of leering eyes, and how men in the old days congregated upon the street corners on windy days to "see the sights." All that is changed now, the speaker declared.

Rev. Peterson's subject was "Manhood the Church." He had a message also for the young boys. His address was inspiring.

Rev. Bohl Toastmaster
With Rev. Bohl as toastmaster and S. E. Pellock conducting the slogging, the program moved along in a very interesting way. Those on the program for toasts included Harold Nelson, who told what a boy expects of his dad. "Dad should be a pal to his son," Harold avers, "and by reason of dad's greater experience he should be a wise counselor in times of need."

Response to this toast Prin. W. C. Petty, pinch-hitting for S. Boyer Nelson, recounted some of the things a father expects of his son. Mr. Petty gave his usual humorous quirk to his toast by remarking that "all I have expected of my small sons thus far is to expect them to go to sleep when I put them to bed." More seriously then the speaker dwelt upon problems of choosing life work and the father's and son's part in this all important task. All sons are not "chips off the old block," Mr. Petty pointed out, and from this it follows the son may not be fitted at all to carry on the avocation of his father.

"What a Father Hopes for His Son" was the subject of Carl Bruckman, and Jack Wetzel told of some good times he had with dad.

Rev. Rex C. Simms, pastor of St. Ignace church, was introduced. In his remarks he agreed with Rev. Bohl that "a boy is an appetite with a skin stretched over it."

The program ended with the singing of the "End of a Perfect Day."

Bob Wilton Falls From Ladder; Breaks Leg

When the ladder on which he was standing slipped on the ice, Bob Wilton fell to the ground and broke his leg just above the ankle. He was rushed to Victory Memorial hospital, Waukegan, where he is resting comfortably, according to latest reports. The accident occurred near Lake Villa.

was Halloween. This is not the first time things like this have happened in Antioch, and authorities state that it will go extremely hard with any pranksters or cranks who thought it one caught molesting cars.

WILMOT PEOPLE GIVE SURPRISE PARTY FOR WM. VOLBRECHT

P. T. A. Card Party To Be Given Thursday Night,
February 27

A number of friends and relatives of Wm. Volbrecht surprised him Saturday evening in honor of his birthday anniversary. Three tables of Euchre were played, first prize going to Mrs. H. Gauger and John Haron and second to Henry Gauger and William Volbrecht. Lunch was served at midnight.

The third of the card party series sponsored by the local P. T. A. is scheduled for Thursday night, Feb. 27. Bridge, 500, Euchre, and Huncie are to be played.

The P. T. A. is also sponsoring a play to be given in March, "The Third Floor Front."

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Schramm and children were at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mecklenburg at Greenwood Monday.

Anna Marie Carey, who was ill with erysipelas, was under the care of Dr. Mulroe the first of the week.

George Washington Spent Many Years Of His Life Working For His Country

Name Stands Out On Pages Of World's History

The lives of few men have stood out on the pages of the world's history as has the life of George Washington, not only for years of continuous service, but also by reason of the quality of service.

Beginning at an early period and continuing through his mature years until almost the close of life he was before the public, working for the interests of his country when he might have been living the life of a gentleman on a large estate. He preferred retirement, but when there was work that needed to be done he was ready to do it. While his country needed him he was ready to serve it to the best of his ability.

Often he was not appreciated, but whether he was the hero of the moment, or whether he was bitterly opposed, nevertheless he kept on doing what he believed should be done and eventually convinced all factions that he was right.

Training Proves Valuable

His experience during the war by which Great Britain won from France a North American empire was valuable training for a more active military experience during the Revolutionary War. Washington was wholly in sympathy with the views held by the American colonists respecting the tyranny of England in making laws and voting taxes for Americans without consulting them or having an American representative in Parliament. He did not, however, favor independence during the period of negotiation before actual hostilities began. He hoped that matters might be adjusted satisfactorily for all concerned and among his friends were many prominent persons who continued to be loyal to England even during the Revolutionary days. When he was fully convinced that war was certain and that the American people needed to fight for their rights he did not hesitate to take sides against friends nor did he hesitate to support measures leading toward independence.

When he went into a thing it was not done in a half hearted manner. He put himself fully into it.

Could Be Trusted

Congress assembled by the colonists to consider measures for the general welfare looked about to find the right man with whom to entrust the high place as Commander-in-Chief. Two or three others were considered, but at length Washington was considered as the man whom all the colonists could trust. He was fairly well known and his large estate and previous military experience gave him prestige, and he had proved himself a wise counselor and an earnest patriot. With zeal, wisdom, and experience it appeared that the choice was the best that could have been made, and later events demonstrated that Congress chose well. However, there was a time when the men who were most ready to send him to the front as Commander-in-Chief regretted their action. It is difficult to realize that Congress should have ever thought of removing him from command and yet it is true.

Expected Too Much Of Him

The reason for the opposition was because it seemed that the results were not what they should have been. Congress hoped for a speedy victory, at no time realizing the difficulty of the task. They wanted Washington to win battles when it was all he could do to hang on. Those were discouraging days and one of the most discouraging things was that Congress criticized the Commander-in-Chief for not bringing the war to a speedy close and neglected to do his part to help out. Instead of listening to Washington's request for assistance, the men far removed from military scenes condemned the man who was trying to save the situation. Washington realized, as no other leader, the magnitude of the task and he knew that the war could not be won by any half-hearted action.

Had Congress furnished the supplies requested, as it might have done; had it adopted, when Washington asked it to do so, a different policy for soldier, enlistment and placed the military situation on a firm basis, the results demanded would have been realized much sooner than they were. The terrible winter at Valley Forge was an unnecessary disgrace. There was not a lack of supplies in camp at that time to make the men uncomfortable. Mothers and sisters had been weaving blankets and making clothes. Supplies were piled high in places, and those whose duty it was to get them to the soldiers could have averted the suffering, but they failed to do their duty.

Enemies of Washington deliberately did what they could to weaken the army and weaken his position. A man who had been less a patriot or lacked the wisdom or patience of him who was first in military command would have given up his post or acted rashly upon the trying circumstances, but not Washington.

It was discovered that the enemies of Washington had circulated misleading reports. He was kept in his position and gradually it was realized that he knew what was best to be done, and from that time on, there was no lack of confidence either on the part of Congress or the public.

Washington Responsible for Victory

The victory won was due more to Washington than to any other one man and everywhere he was recognized as the national hero; some of his military exploits excited even the admiration of military leaders in Europe. Opposed by forces stronger than his own, wearing out the enemy by carefully planned retreats, striking an effective blow now and then, but never unwisely risking the structure of his army, and bringing the issue to a final test only when everything was well planned for a favorable ending of the conflict—such was his commendable record as a general. He was continually doing what the enemy did not think that he would do.

Shows Rare Public Spirit

When the war was over, he resigned his command, presented a bill of his expenditures, which were extremely small considering what he had done, and asked no pay for his services. While he could afford to serve without recompense, nevertheless, his willingness to do so showed rare public spirit—a spirit that has been much lacking in later years.

The nation realized that it owed to this man a debt which it could never pay. All the reward he wanted was that he could return to his home and live in peace. There the rumors of new problems confronting the nation reached him. Visitors came and talked with him regarding those problems. Liberty had been secured, Doubtless he recognized the honor that had been given to him, but he did not serve for honor, he accepted the position as a duty and responsibility. He did not seek honor; he looked only at the opportunity for public service. When his country needed him, he was ready. When there was work he could do, he did not hesitate to do it. He was over prompted by the highest motives, and the knowledge that he had done his duty and served his country to the best of his ability was all the reward he wanted.

Independence had been acknowledged by the mother country, but the separate states were not amicably united.

Presides at Convention

At last a convention was called to draft a constitution which might give stability to the nation, and Washington was taken from his retirement to preside at the convention. The constitution became a reality, was ratified by a sufficient number of states to make it binding, and under it the governmental machinery was set up.

Once more was Washington called. He had led his country through the trying years of conflict—of struggle for independence, he had served faithfully and well as head of the conven-

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Soul" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, February 18.

The Golden Text was, "I will set my tabernacle among you; and my soul shall not depart from you. And I will walk among you, and will be your God, and ye shall be my people" (Lev. 26:11, 12).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "Unto thee, O Lord, do I lift up my soul. Show me thy ways, O Lord; teach me thy paths" (Psalms 25:1, 4).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Soul and Spirit being one, God and Soul are one, and this one never included in a limited mind or a limited body. . . . Because Soul is immortal, it does not exist in mortality. . . . Only by losing the false sense of Soul can we gain the eternal unfolding of Life as immortality brought to light" (p. 335).

VOTE FOR W. C. PETTY

Republican Candidate for

County Superintendent OF SCHOOLS

He is an all school man, for all the schools, for all the children of Lake county.

His qualifications are unquestioned. Graduate of Illinois State Normal University.

Special courses at Eastern Illinois State Normal and Chicago university.

Has Illinois supervisory certificate. Member National Education Association and Kappa Delta Pi.

Secretary Elementary Section of North Shore Division Illinois State Teachers' Association.

Eleven years successful teaching experience, two of which were in rural schools.

Prin. Petty is 31 years old. He has a wife and two small sons. He was reared and schooled in Illinois where he has done all of his teaching, seven years of which have been in Lake county. He taught at Grayslake for three years.

Although the county superintendent supervises only the rural schools, Mr. Petty feels that the qualifications of such an official should be equivalent at least to that of the teacher whom he supervises.

The candidate believes that the office of county superintendent of schools should be divorced from politics. Your vote for Prin. W. C. Petty for county superintendent of schools will be a vote for greater efficiency and more equalized educational opportunities for Lake county children.

CHANNEL LAKE COUNTRY CLUB NEWS

— What Members of Popular Organization Are Doing —

At a recent meeting of the entertainment committee of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Channel Lake Country club, under the leadership of the chairman, Mrs. Henry Paulson, most interesting plans were outlined for the coming summer season. There will be dances, card parties, golf events, picnics, suppers, Field Day events, and special events for the young people, juniors, and little folks. The schedule, when published, should make it very easy for the membership committee to offer an endorsement to secure new members, and we predict the finest year the club has ever known.

The road to Florida is enticing many of our members to its sunny shores. Among some of the more recent visitors are: Mr. and Mrs. Wm. H. Gifford, who are motoring through the state. Others, who are enjoying Winterhaven, are Mrs. M. E. Fender, Mr. and Mrs. Tony True, and Harold Bell.

Emil J. Gnaedinger, the president of the club, is making plans for another dance for the members to be held soon after Easter.

Antioch Still In Running for Northwest Conference Title

BENSENVILLE LEADS; LOCALS TIED WITH PALATINE, LIB'TYVILLE

Only Two More Games Remain on Season's Schedule

ANTIOCH HOPES TO WIN

Coach Reed's peppy lightweight basket tossers who won the tournament trophy in a sensational series two weeks ago, are still in the running for the Northwest conference championship. It was indicated yesterday following a check up of the standing of the ten teams after the Tuesday night games.

Team	Won	Lost	Av.
Bonsenville	9	1	.900
Antioch	8	2	.800
Palatine	8	2	.800
Libertyville	8	2	.800
Arlington Hts.	6	4	.600
Barrington	4	4	.400
Warren	2	7	.222
Leyden	2	8	.200
Ela	1	8	.111
Wauconda	1	9	.100

Antioch, tied with Palatine and Libertyville for second place, has two more games on the regular schedule, so have their rivals for second honors and also Bensenville, the conference leaders.

Bensenville's foes are Gurnee on Feb. 21, and Palatine, Feb. 28, while Antioch takes on Barrington and Leyden on the same dates. Meanwhile Palatine plays Arlington Heights on the 21st and mixes with the conference leaders in the final season game on the 28th. Libertyville has games with Leyden and Gurnee.

That it will be noted if Bensenville loses one game and any of the three tied for second place win one game, Bensenville will be tied for the championship. If the leaders drop both games, any of the three teams in second place have a chance to cop the title by annexing two victories. However, if the four leaders should win all games, the standings would remain the same; but this is impossible as Palatine plays Bensenville in the final game on Feb. 28.

A tie for second place, possibly for the championship, is not unexpected. Anyway, Antioch is out for two victories, in which event their conference standing will be determined by victories or defeats of rival teams in the two remaining games.

Sectional Tournament Next
The sectional tournament, held by the Illinois High School Athletic association, the first of an elimination series to determine the championship of the state, will be held in Waukegan March 6, 7, and 8.

The following teams will participate:
Class A Teams—
Arlington Heights
Libertyville
Maline (Des Plaines)
New Trier (Winnetka)
Palatine
Waukegan

Class B Teams—
Antioch
Barrington
Ela (Lake Zurich)
Richmond
Warren (Gurnee)
Wauconda

"Kid Dope" on Class B Teams
"Kid Dope" on the free throw line, says Antioch is the "feared team" of the tournament. The "Kid" says:

The Northwest Conference Tournament held January 31, and February 1, affords a nice study of all the Class B teams entered in the District Tournament with the exception of Richmond.

ANTIOCH won the tournament for the fourth consecutive time, defeating Bensenville by a score of 33 to 17 in the final.

Mastoe, a long shot artist, was the scoring star of the tournament. In the final game he registered five baskets and six free throws, and was chosen as one of the All-Conference forwards. Mastoe is not the only star on the powerful Antioch team. Cromlin, center, and McNell, a guard, were both placed on the All-Star team. Those three stars teamed with such seasoned men as King, Fuchs, Turk and Brogan, make Antioch the "Feared Team" of the tournament.

In the past two tournaments they have forced the District winners into overtime games and "Kid Dope" up is—don't overlook Antioch.

BARRINGTON went into the second round by handling Leyden a 24 to 16 setback, but lost, to Antioch, the Tournament winners, in the second days play by a 22 to 16 score.

The Barrington quintet are clever ball handlers and play a nice floor game. Bonnot, center, is an excellent floor man, and Cline was selected as the other All-Conference forward. We did not have the opportunity

American Beauty Type

Iluth Resnikoff of Toledo, Ohio, who was selected, in a contest staged at Philadelphia, as the most nearly perfect type of American beauty, also 34. The contestants were from physical culture classes. Iluth is an expert swimmer and is fond of outdoor sports.

ity of seeing this team in the Tournament but several of the rival coaches classed them as a "Sweet team".

Ela is the team which kicked over the Dope Bucket in the Northwest Conference. No one gave Coach Richter's boys a "look in" with the fast stepping Libertyville Wildcats, but the Lake Zurich lads led by Froelich, a forward, who was placed on the All-Star team as a guard, and Lohman, a guard, gave a nice exhibition of long range shooting and piled up an 18 to 4 lead at the half. Then they held off a driving Wildcat attack to gain a 27 to 22 decision. In the semi-finals Bensenville's smooth passing attack was too much for Ela and they were eliminated by a 17 to 12 count.

However with a full month to "iron out" any rough spots which he might have discovered Coach Richter will have his poring set to go places and do things.

RICHMOND is a new comer in this district and comparatively little information could be obtained on their squad. We do know that they have 4 veterans on their squad and that they have been playing schools much larger than their own. The fans will be interested in watching the work of Coach Oberholser's Five.

WARREN was eliminated in the first game of the tournament. The Gurnee basketballers led Libertyville most of the way but it was a case of an experienced versus an inexperienced team and Libertyville came from behind to win in the last quarter.

Coach Kelton's Five though handicapped by lack of size and experience are hard driving aggressive youngsters, well grounded in fundamentals. Though there are no outstanding stars the team play is nicely balanced and Gohrke (guard), Smith (forward), and Bejeck (center) all act as pivot men in offensive play.

WAUCONDA with a rather green team started the season with a short run of wins but since January they have been a more or less erratic team. Coach Seale's material is limited but he has practically every boy in school playing basketball now. Wauconda's inexperienced quintet does not figure to go much beyond the second round but they will be in there fighting.

Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Haghemelter and daughter returned to their home here Sunday night after spending several days visiting in Evansville, Ind.

MACEK OFFERS SUPER SHOW IN PALACE RING TOMORROW NIGHT

Schlosser and Ed. Borgo In Heavyweight Wind-Up Clash

Chicago's best amateur, talent matched against the cream of Chain O' Lakes leather pushers will furnish the entertainment in Dick Macek's seven-bout boxing show at the Antioch Palace Friday night.

Paul Harris, Howard Craft, Johnny Hughes, Buddy Beyer and Ernie Kradochvil, representing the Chain O' Lakes maulers ought to be enough to assure the most rabid resin-breather of a real show.

Thrilling Windup

As a windup attraction two of the best amateur heavies are sure to mix plenty in the closing bout. Both scrappers hail from the windy city: B. Schlosser, of the Arcade gym, is a bad man to mix with as he carries a kyo to either mit. But Schlosser will find a worthy foe in Ed. Borgo, one of the toughest amateurs who ever climbed through the ropes.

Ernie Kradochvil, popular in the local ring, meets Toni Muscarelli in the semi-windup fracas. This is bound to be a fight. The opening preliminary will find Eddie Upgard and Joe Lanetto in the ring, while Paul Harris mixes with H. Gallagher in the second bout. The third bout between Howard Craft and Frank Russo, at 128 pounds ought to furnish an unusual amount of thrills as both boys are clever and should put up a real exhibition of boxing.

Johnny Hughes and Jack Lazar will appear in the fourth preliminary.

In a return bout, Lazar shaded Hughes last Friday and the return match tomorrow night ought to be good.

Buddy Meyers, Twin Lakes, and Laddie Miller, Chicago, are billed for the last preliminary.

Last Friday's Results

Dick Hall, Whitewater, Wis., heavy, pounded Don Farmer, Kenosha, all over the ring in the windup last Friday night for a three round decision. Hall's long flashing left had a tantalizing habit of finding Farmer's chin with monotonous regularity, but none of the punches carried enough steam to put the tough Kenosha man down.

The nearest to that thrill came in the second round when Hall nailed him with a right cross to the button. Farmer was practically out on his feet but stuck the round out by slipping by Hall's nose too well directed punching. Hall showed promise of better things in the ring.

Jack Lazar won a three round decision over Johnnie Hughes in the semi-windup, which was the best bout (Continued on page eight)

ANTIOCH MAJORS COP WIN FROM WAUCONDA

In a slow featureless game the Wauconda Miners defeated the Sequit Minors by a score of 14-6, while the Antioch Majors copped the win from the Wauconda Majors by a 35-25 count.

The first team put up a fair exhibition the first half, pulling a score of 18-4 against Wauconda. There were many substitutions in the last half; it was the first game that Fuchs played since he was injured two weeks ago and Mastoe viewed the game from the sidelines.

Coach Reed is now training his team for the District Tournament to be held at Waukegan on March 6, 7, and 8.

ADVERTISE IN YOUR HOME TOWN PAPER

The Oswego, Oregon, Review runs the following interesting quotation from the American Banker's Magazine, using it as an advertisement:

"No business in any town should allow a newspaper published in his town to go without his name and business being mentioned somewhere in its columns."

"This applies to all kinds of business and professional men. It does not mean that you should have a whole, half or even a quarter page ad in each issue of the paper, but your name should be mentioned, if you do not use more than a two-line space."

"A stranger picking up a newspaper should be able to tell what business is represented in the town by looking at a paper. This is the best possible town advertiser. The man who does not advertise his business does an injustice to himself and the town. The life of a town depends upon the live, wide-awake and liberal advertising business man."

THE POWER OF MONEY

Money is one thing that works continuously without ever getting tired or giving up the job. One who pays interest on borrowed funds realizes the persistence of the effort of this servant who works unceasingly for his owner.

Someone once tried, it is said, to find out how much a dollar would amount to at the present time if it had been deposited in a bank by Moses, drawing compound interest since that time. The fact is that it would have grown to an amount beyond one's imagination long before the temple at Jerusalem was destroyed. If Methuselah had deposited a dollar in a bank at four per cent compound interest when he was twenty years of age and would have taken out nothing until two hundred years before his death he could have enjoyed an annual income of forty billion dollars all the rest of his life, and have left an estate of a trillion dollars, from the returns on the original dollar deposited in his youth. Impossible! Figure it out for yourself and see. One's mind cannot comprehend the growing power of money over centuries of time. What could a modern financier do in a life time as long as the lives of many of the ancients?

The average person does not look forward to centuries of future existence, but even the limited period of time from youth to old age shows the power of money to reproduce itself over and over again. Inanimate though it may be, it multiplies at an amazing rate. A few dollars deposited every week for 20 years makes it possible for the owner thereafter to draw out a slightly larger amount each week so long as he lives without decreasing the accumulated capital. Five dollars deposited every week in a savings bank from the age of 20 to 60 will insure a fair income the rest of one's life without disturbing the principal.

Millions have been made from small investments in manufacturing plants and in commercial enterprises, but one must have money in order to get the benefit from returns, and usually sacrifice is required to get the necessary financial start. Opportunities are numerous to invest in paying propositions, though one needs to exercise great care in selecting investments. Fortunes are squandered as well as made, and wisdom is an essential quality if one is to get the best returns, but undue caution is folly, for he who never risks never gains.

Money, with its potential power for earning more money, is not to be despised, but money as a goal or money to be used for an unworthy purpose is a curse.

Money is powerful in many ways; it is powerful to do good and likewise it is powerful to promise evil. The corrupt politician uses it for evil purposes; the man with a vision uses it to advance the higher ideals of civilization; one with a sympathetic heart makes of money the power that relieves suffering; the one with an evil heart uses it to bring distress to humanity. Money will do virtually anything either good or bad. It will reproduce its own kind; it will either bless or curse humanity, the result being determined by the purpose of the individual who controls the destiny of "the almighty dollar."

DON'T DIE ON THIRD BASE

On the ball diamond or in life it is important to reach third base and it is equally important to go on from that point. It is one to reach the goal. How often a game on the diamond is lost, because a player dies on third base. One must reach home before a score can be placed to his credit.

One must go through to the end to win. Victories are not won by struggling on until the end is in sight and then relaxing.

Almost a word that stands for tragedy—the tragedy of near achievement. Andrea del Sarto, the Italian painter, is a representation of the many who have stopped with the goal in sight instead of pressing on to victory.

This artist had marvelous ability and painted some really noteworthy pictures, but he lacked the spirit and energy to carry him to real success. He was easily turned aside by the pleasures of the passing moment.

Life is a game and we are the players; there are many landmarks on the way to the goal just as there are bases which the player must touch as he makes his run around the diamond. Always there is that which beckons on, urges one to make the effort to reach the goal and to accomplish that which one sets out to do. Some struggle on, while others are satisfied when they have attained what they deem "good enough."

The first automobile that actually ran with its own power was a wonder in its day, but it hadn't even reached third base of what the automobile might become. Suppose that inventive genius had been satisfied with it and not tried to perfect the machine that had actually become a wonder in its efficiency!

The travelling man says "Well, I almost landed that order," but that isn't what pays expenses. He must actually get the order. Almost is not enough in anything. The third basers are not the ones that win; they are not the ones whom the world hears about; they are not the ones who get the pay envelopes, nor are they the ones who do the most good in the world. It takes the individual who, though he may not make a home run, nevertheless, works his way around to the home plate; don't die on third base.

would be to him after he got out of college. He was fearful and discouraged, and there was no land in sight. All that I could say failed to convince him or induce him to sail on.

I watched a football player in our last intercollegiate game in his attempts to advance the ball. The defense of the opposing team was for a considerable time perfect. Time and again the boy tried with the ball to plunge through the line, but the line held, and he was stopped at every attempt. There was for him, apparently, no land in sight, but he sailed on, the line finally weakened, the interference came to his support and he made a touchdown.

A friend of mine who was engaged in a scientific investigation made this same experiment more than a thousand times in order to reach a desired result. Over and over again he was advised by those who were onlookers that it was useless for him to continue. There was nothing, they said, to be hoped for by going on. But he sailed on, and ultimately he made the discovery he had been hoping for.

Persistence in following an ideal! It is a great virtue.

DO YOU KNOW THESE?

Inside, I'm white, outside I'm brown, I have a shape that's round and round;

I grow on trees, but not in town, For little monkeys throw me down. A coconut.

It runs up, it runs down, but still it never moves? A stairway.

What kind of stones may one always find in the water? Wet ones. Why is snow different from Sunday? Because it can fall on any day of the week.

What belongs to you and is used by your friends more than by you? Your name.

Where was Solomon's temple? On the side of his head.

What runs and has no feet? Water. What goes over the water and makes no shadows? An echo.

If you raise wheat in dry weather, what do you raise in rainy weather? An umbrella.

Do you know why the onions and potatoes will not grow in the same

Old Eagle Eye Says--

Monday was a great day for Antioch babies—here, there, and everywhere coos and gurgles could be heard. Well, maybe it's a good thing their mammies decided to pull the buggy ride stuff early, because "it won't be long now" before the poor little kids will have to be content to stay with the nurse maids while the femmes beaux swing the wicked tennis rackets.

Sunshine ain't such a bad substitution for soothing sirup after all.

Haven't you developed a real cringing hatred for the Old Weather Man, since he's made it so slippery?

No doubt many of you during the noontide rush Tuesday saw an old man standing on Main street gazing at the thrift signs on display in the east window of the First National bank. What was your reaction? Didn't you feel just like saying to him the same thing the poet Lowell said to his friend, Thomas Hughes—"Casa de usted" (my house at your service). But just as you had your tongue all coiled up, didn't something say to you, "No, don't say anything to him; he's probably a sot or at least some kind of malicious character."

Isn't it too bad that we, the players of this great game called life, cannot better understand each other—what a help we could be to each other if it were possible for us to read character accurately through the mediums of countenance and clothes!

Why is there always a telephone pole in the path of the luckless motorist who runs off the highway and into the ditch?

An amusing story is told of a couple of early Justices of the United States Supreme Court. They agreed to go without wine at dinner until it rained. There ensued a long spell of dry weather during which the suffering justices felt the lack of the drop that cheers. Finally they could stand the strain no longer and it was gravely agreed upon that the jurisdiction of the court extended so far that somewhere within it it must be raining. So they took a drink. That is the way the 18th amendment appears to be interpreted by many today.

SAILING ON

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

The story is told in the life of Christopher Columbus that as they drifted on from day to day in the little frail boats in which he and his companions were attempting to cross an unknown and uncharted sea, the superstitious sailors were frightened at seeing no land, nor any signs of land, and were on the verge of mutiny. Columbus held them together; he calmed their fears; he gained their interest and their co-operation, and on the night following one of the nearest approaches to complete mutiny, he wrote in his diary:

"This day we sailed on!"
Discouragement, disappointment, no apparent nearing of the goal for which they had almost blindly set out, but sailing on! Possibly it is darkest before daylight, but in the face of failure it takes determination and courage to continue.

General Grant, who was in charge of the northern forces toward the end of our Civil war, had laid out for himself and his armies a plan of procedure. It involved hard fighting and a high mortality of his troops. His plan seemed to many people pretty much a hopeless one. Success did come to him at once; there were disastrous losses which looked very much like failure. He was questioned as to the wisdom of his plan.

"I shall fight it out on this line," was his reply, "if it takes all summer."

Sailing on in the face of storm and high waves and reverse winds! And in the end he won.

A freshman dropped in on me yesterday. He had set sail in his intellectual barque a few weeks ago, and now he was ready to turn back. Things had not proved so easy as he had anticipated. Mathematics took more time and more hard thinking than he had planned to give it. His English style was neither so fluent nor so accurate as he had been made to think. In high school, and he could hardly see what use some of the subjects which he was required to pursue compared with the problem I have to solve. When people used to burn grimy fuels, it was a simple matter for me to enter their homes. Every order for grimy fuel was an invitation to me. I was busy all the time, for I've never yet turned down an invitation. But these invitations are getting fewer and fewer since people have started to burn WAUKEGAN KOPPERS COKE—the dustless, sootless, smokeless fuel. There is no invitation to me when people order WAUKEGAN KOPPERS COKE. I'm on the outside looking in, and, chances are, I'll stay there. Isn't that problem enough for anyone?"

"A Chinese puzzle is easy—

When you burn a clean fuel, no dust, soot or smoke comes from your heating plant to soil rugs, drapes, furniture and walls in your home. This all desirable quality of CLEANLINESS is one of the most important features of WAUKEGAN KOPPERS COKE. Besides—WAUKEGAN KOPPERS COKE is easy to handle—and it is readily regulated to just the temperature you want. Try WAUKEGAN KOPPERS COKE—and prove to your own satisfaction that it provides the peak of heating comfort.

Requests for American Canned Foods, Many

Everywhere in the world today you will find the cans, and most of them are American. From all the capitals of the world and from cities and countries so out-of-the-way that you scarcely seem to have heard of them, requests for American canned foods flow constantly in to the Department of Commerce in Washington.

From Many Lands

A list of the countries and colonies from which such requests came during only two months of last year comprises Africa, Argentina, Australia, Canada, China, Columbia, Cuba, Cyprus, Denmark, Egypt, Estonia, England, Ethiopia, France, French Indo-China, Germany, the Irish Free State, Italy, Japan, Java, Mexico, Natal, New South Wales, New Zealand, Norway, Panama, Poland, Porto Rico, Scotland, South Africa, Southern Rhodesia, Spain, Straits Settlements, Sumatra, Sweden, Switzerland, Syria and West Africa.

Do You Know These?

In addition to the world's capitals and well-known cities these requests came from localities that, to many of us, are little more than names on a map. These included Mombasa, Africa; Medellin, Columbia; Lima, Peru; Cyprus; Semarang, Java; Tallinn, Estonia; Addis Ababa, Ethiopia; Bulawayo, Southern Rhodesia; Medan, Sumatra; and Accra, West Africa.

Among the canned fruits which these cities and countries are seeking to buy are apples, apricots, grapefruit, peaches, pears, pineapple and prunes. Some of the canned fish are codfish, mackerel, oysters, salmon, sardines and shrimps. They want the whole line of canned vegetables and meats, all varieties of soups, and there is a great demand everywhere for our American condensed and evaporated milk.

Sally Ann's Adventures —at her home

Sally Ann had the cutest little party you ever heard of yesterday. There were eight of her playmates there and each one had her dolly. It took place at 2 o'clock and lasted until 6.

Sally Ann was all excited for days and days before the party. She just couldn't help talking about it most all of the time. And what do you think about it—she planned all the eats all by herself. But you'll be anxious to know what she had. Well she had cake, ice cream, and candy.

When her little friends began to come Sally Ann just jumped and jumped in glee. When the big clock in the corner said "one, two", all of the little friends whom she had invited were there except Suzanne; Sally Ann couldn't imagine what ever had happened to Suzanne, but they had

Modern Way To Keep Roasted Coffee Fresh

It is now generally known that the gas formed in coffee when it is roasted, exudes slowly when the coffee is exposed to the air. Indeed, so firmly has this fact become fixed in the public consciousness that at least one firm is now advertising that it dates its containers so that no one need buy coffee that has become stale.

Must Preserve All Oils

But this dating is not enough. Although it takes about ten days for all the gas to get out of ground coffee and two weeks for all of it to get out of bean coffee, from 60% to 70% of it exudes in the first twenty-four hours and carries with it the aroma of the coffee. This aroma comes from the volatile oils in coffee just as the aroma of a rose comes from that flower's volatile oil from which perfume is made, and it is the loss of the aromatic oils that causes coffee to lose that delicious aroma which is one of the chief reasons why we drink it.

There is also another kind of oil in coffee—a vegetable oil about as thick as olive oil, which composes about 15% of its weight. When the valued only a few minutes when Sussie's mamma called and said that her little girlie couldn't go to the party, because she had a sore throat. Sally Ann felt so sorry that Sussie couldn't be there because they always played together so much.

What games do you think they played? Hide-and-go-seek, house, tag, and drop the handkerchief. The time flew so fast that it didn't seem long at all until the clock said, "One, two, three, four, five". So then it was time to eat, and Sally Ann was the most gracious little hostess you ever saw. She passed the cake and candy again and again until her little friends were so full they couldn't even rock their dollies to sleep, so Sally Ann's mamma took them all up stairs and put them to bed until their mamma's were ready to go home, and when they were all ready to go she went up and woke them up and put their coats and hats and mittens on and put them in their mamma's arms and then Sally Ann's papa took all of the little girls and their babies home. Sally Ann was so excited that she couldn't get to sleep until way late that night. Maybe she'll have another party some day pretty soon, boys and girls, and next time she is going to invite some of her little boy friends too.

oxygen of the air comes in contact with this oil it turns it rancid just as olive oil turns rancid when exposed to the air, and it is this rancidity that destroys the flavor of the coffee and makes it taste stale.

The Modern Solution

The only way in which roasted coffee can be kept in absolutely perfect condition is by packing it in a container absolutely impervious to air. This method of packing is known as the "Vacuum Process," and consists of extracting the air and hermetically sealing it in the container so that the aroma cannot be lost and the air cannot spoil the fixed oil.

Hints For Homemakers

By Jane Rogers

If your old wooden drain board is the worse for wear, buy a piece of embossed linoleum, fit it to the board, and tack it down. The water will follow the indentation, and the linoleum is soft enough to prevent the chipping of your dishes.

Glazing adds a gay and appetizing touch to meats. In barbecuing beef, sear and brush frequently with the glazing syrup which is made by boiling, until the sugar is dissolved, one cup sugar, one-fourth cup water, and two tablespoons lemon juice, and then adding one-fourth teaspoon tobacco sauce, one-fourth teaspoon Worcestershire sauce. Glazing requires steady, moderate heat.

A Statement by Edw. Ahlstrom Republican Candidate for SHERIFF

After full consideration I announced my candidacy for Sheriff. I was sheriff 1922-26.

To Stay to Win

Real System

Ask Them

No "Yes" Man

No "Gang" Support

No Immunity

No Side-stepping

Right to Know

Will Justify You

I am in this campaign to stay and to win. Support thus far given me is intensely gratifying and growing daily in volume. Without reservation I believe I am going to win.

The office of sheriff is now very largely an executive office—not a police department.

I inaugurated the first real business system in the office and refer to the County Auditor.

I leave my case for strictest integrity in executive action to any Judge—to any Attorney—to the State's Attorney.

I am asking your support because in my heart my belief is, because of temperament and experience, I am best qualified for the office.

I am not asking your support because of being a "good fellow," a hand-shaker, a "Yes" man, because of family relationship, or because of my affiliation fraternally or otherwise.

I have neither "millionaire" nor "gang" financial support. I don't expect the former, and won't accept the latter.

I have not and will not promise immunity to anyone at any price. I have not promised one job or a hundred.

Any statement made by me will be signed by me. No "friends" of mine or "campaign committee" will issue any public statement and not sign their names—no "false pretenses!"

As tax-payers and citizens you want to know—have the right to know—and will know—over my signature, what I, the candidate, have to say.

I will appreciate your support and justify it by conducting the office with fidelity, efficiency and economy.

Sincerely yours,

EDW. AHLSTROM.

DIPPING INTO SCIENCE

Meals of 500 Pounds
 You have imagined often the tremendous size of some of the prehistoric animals; but what did they eat, and how much? Scientists agree that these sixty-foot monsters, called diplodocus, ate vegetable matter and the average daily portion must have been approximately 500 pounds. Fossils of these animals furnish interesting data.

SECOND BIRTHDAY OF A. L. A. OBSERVED BY MEMBERS

Members of the American Legion Auxiliary entertained the Legionnaires and their wives and friends at an elaborate party in the beautifully decorated Guild hall Friday night, the occasion being the second birthday anniversary of the Auxiliary. Bridge, 500, and Bunco were played after which a bountiful lunch was served. Dancing followed. One of the features of the evening was an immense birthday cake which occupied a table in the center of the room. It was cut by Miss Elizabeth Webb, president of the local organization, and Mrs. Mary Mann, Gold Star mother. The winners at cards were: Mrs. Lester Osmond, Mrs. Nason Shiley, Ben Burke, and Lester Osmond, in Bridge; Mrs. Walter Hills, Mrs. C. E. Shultz, Mrs. Eva Kaye, Walter Hills, J. B. Nelson, and Chris Mortensen in 500; and Mrs. John Blackman in Bunco. Mrs.

J. E. Brown, president of District No. 18, was honor guest of the evening and there were about 70 in attendance.

Sharing National Prosperity

HOW often we hear some one talk of "the good old days." Through the mist of the passing years, some people believe they see a rainbow with its pot of gold, that everyone shared in the "good old days." This picture is false—this imagined prosperity of the past is a myth.

The Good Old Days were never half as prosperous as the Present Days.

Today the average person is almost twice as well off as he was only a half dozen years ago. Prices are less now than they were then. Incomes are greater by a third. The average person, working—gainfully occupied—has an income of $2,000, while his predecessor of less than twenty years ago enjoyed less than half such an income.

We are a prosperous people in a prosperous country. Individual and family prosperity is evidenced by:

1. The increasing number of home owners.
2. Almost one auto to every family.
3. A radio in nearly every home.
4. Better household furnishings and equipment.
5. Crowded theaters, roads and amusement places.
6. More leisure for the worker because of shorter hours.

With national prosperity increasing rapidly, a real opportunity awaits us as individuals and as a community—let us all take advantage of this opportunity by applying ourselves diligently to our tasks in

7. More students in schools and colleges.
8. Improved health and vital conditions in town and country.
9. Rapid growth of savings accounts.
10. Increase in insurance policies.
11. Increasing donations to charities and benevolences.

National prosperity guarantees that general conditions are sound. It signifies that exceptional opportunities are open to both individuals and communities. It further shows us, in the main, that the majority of towns and cities are prosperous; citizens are prosperous.

In order that all of us may share in this national prosperity, every resident of our community must diligently make an effort. The opportunity is ever present—the dice are not loaded—either for the average man or the average community.

It has been said that personal success is 10% inspiration and 90% perspiration. Likewise, community prosperity is largely the result of work—three quarters of it is a reward of business activity; only one quarter comes from investment. There is no substitute for work. By it we gain our full share of national prosperity.

It isn't the pipe that causes these embarrassing moments, Mr. Puff. It's the tobacco. Isn't it time you discovered Sir Walter Raleigh—patron saint of pipe smokers, who discovered how good a pipe can be? His favorite smoking mixture really is milder. It really is just about the richest, mellowest, mildest blend of choice Burleys you've ever smoked.

Lots of folks who think they have "indigestion" have only an acid condition which could be corrected in five or ten minutes. An effective anti-acid like Phillips Milk of Magnesia soon restores digestion to normal.

Phillips does away with all that sourness and gas right after meals. It prevents the distress so apt to occur two hours after eating. What a pleasant preparation to take! And how good it is for the system! Unlike a burning dose of soda—which is but temporary relief at best—Phillips Milk of Magnesia neutralizes many times its volume in acid. Next time a hearty meal, or too rich a diet has brought on the least discomfort, try—

CHAPTER XII—Continued

"There's plenty of time, you fool," I hissed. "Wait! Somebody—" I was going to say somebody might come back, and the somebody cut my sentence in the middle. A door opened, and the voice of Helene de Crespel spoke.

"What is this I hear, mon ami?" she asked. "Are you mad? This girl is the spall of the hand. She belongs to all of us. We are holding her for a bigger stake. Shall we let you have her for your own satisfaction? You take too—"

"You are jealous," snarled Tontou. "I say I want her, and I am going to have her. I am tired of women like you."

Hugh, his nerves under control, gently parted the folds of the curtain with his pistol muzzle. The atrium was brilliantly lighted. He and I could see perfectly. On a divan heaped with cushions lay Betty. Her hands were bound behind her, and her feet were tied loosely. Her hair was rumpled, and her blouse ripped off at the shoulder. But her eyes sparkled like stars as she stared fearlessly at the monster who stood beside her.

Tontou was in a different mood from any I knew, or rather, I should say, from the one I knew. His sinisterly beautiful face revealed the latent ferocity that was the salient feature of his character, but with it there was something else, something difficult to define. The tigerish glare in his eyes was replaced by a softer light; the pupils were expanded; his mouth was slack. His movements were uncertain. He hovered over Betty, looking almost fearfully at Helene.

She stood just inside the door that communicated with the large outer chamber. She was dressed in a sports suit and high boots. Her hat was off, and her face showed pinched and wan. There were shadows under her eyes.

"Say I am jealous," she answered steadily. "I have a right to be. You have never had a woman who did more for you than I. Do you think Miss Innocence here would do what I have done?"

"That is why I want her," returned Tontou, his voice singularly hoarse. "I am tired of you. I am tired of all of you. I hunger for innocence. I wish to forget crime and evil. When we finish this job I am going to take this petite and go away where Tontou will be unknown."

"Tontou LaFite a reformed character," Helene laughed sarcastically. "You don't know what you are talking about. You have nothing in common with innocence."

"Who knows?"
"I know, mon ami. The girl would kill herself first. Sooner than see you do this I will kill you."

Tontou frowned at her.

Helene stepped forward boldly, one hand inside her jacket.

"There are many things you can do, Tontou," she said. "And you are chief. Nobody questions that. But remember that if the others are afraid of you, I am not. And I say that you shall not do this. Something you owe to the band. More, still, you owe to me. You know the well enough to appreciate that I intend to secure what I consider due me."

Tontou growled in his throat, and his pupils began to contract. The slack left his mouth.

"It is time you feared me," he snarled. "Go away, I am through with you. I never wish to see you again. You shall have your share of this coin, then you shall leave the band."

"But I thought there was to be no more band," sneered Helene. "I thought Tontou was to become a honest bourgeois, with a dove-cut—"

"You shall feel my knife," he barked at her.

"Why should I feel your knife?" she retorted. "The last time a woman threatened you, you fled from her knife."

Her face was white with rage, and Tontou's whole frame seemed to draw together as an animal does when it prepares to spring. His long arms curved before him, his right hand at the level of his belt.

"You do not know when a man fires of you, it seems," he exclaimed. "an you not see we wish to be by ourselves?"

She made a violent effort to regain her self-control.

"For the last time," she said quietly, "will you heed the opinion of your colleagues and leave this girl alone?"

"No," he growled savagely. "Go, you—"

"Look out," cried Betty, who alone of us all could see clearly what Tontou was doing with his right hand. "His knife!"

Helene snatched a pistol from her blouse; but he was too quick for her. As the flame spurted from the barrel he slipped aside, and his immensely arm curled out and slashed down.

The blood frothed over the hilt of his knife as it clicked on her collarbone, and she dropped, choking, to the floor.

In the same instant Hugh fired, but one of us jostled him and the bullet missed. Tontou turned, saw the curtain swaying as we charged, and ran for the door. I fired once, and the bullet clipped his arm and side, but he was out before we could shoot again.

From the courtyard came a crash and a ripple of shots that vied with the thunder. A chorus of yells pierced thinly the howling of the gale.

Nikka, hearing Helene's pistol, but accepted it as the long overdue signal for his attack.

"Take care of Betty, professor!" Hugh called to King. "See if you can help this poor girl. Come on, Jack. Watty!"

CHAPTER XIII

Under the Red Stone

The big room was a maze of shadows. Stable lanterns, flickering in the drafts, hung from hooks in walls and pillars. Tontou stayed his flight by the door to the courtyard, one eye inclined to the bedlam of shots and outcries that threaded the roar of the storm. As we burst in he raised a pistol and sprayed us with bullets as rapidly as he could pull the trigger. But he had the knife-fighter's inability to shoot straight. Bullets "plinked" all around us, yet none of us was hit.

Several men and women stared at us. Helmi Bey peered from behind a pillar next to the courtyard door. He had plainly taken shelter at the crack of Helene's pistol. Monty Miller and Serge Vassilievich stood some distance to the right of us, paralyzed with surprise. Maude Miller and Sandra Vassilievich had risen from seats at the other end. Apparently they had supposed Tontou was engaged only with Helene.

He screamed at them, insensate in his fury. His knife still dripped blood. He lunged his empty pistol at us.

"Fools!" he shrieked. "We are betrayed!"

The door to the courtyard was open, and he spun on his heel and

"There's plenty of time, you fool," I hissed.

dodged behind a pillar. Nikka reeled in.

"Strange Tziganes folk have burst the street door," he bellowed. "We—" He gaped at sight of us.

"Quick!" Hugh shouted. "Scatter—before they shoot!"

Watkins and I jumped right and left. Hugh sought the shelter of a pillar. "Shoot!" yelled Tontou. "Shoot! Fools! Swine! Dogs!"

And he babbled on obscenely, darting catlike from pillar to pillar toward Watty. Miller and Serge simultaneously came to life and made for us, guns spurring, throwing pieces of furniture to confuse us. Things happened so fast that it was impossible to keep track of everything, but I found myself in a pistol duel with Serge, Hugh and Watkins were blazing away at Helmi, Miller and Nikka, and Tontou was weaving through the smoke, seeking an opportunity to close with one of us. I paid no attention to the women until a bullet spitted on a pillar by my ear. I knew it could not have come from the front, and started, I turned to the left in time to see Sandra aiming deliberately at me. I dodged, and thereby opened myself to her brother's attack.

He was an expert marksman, and I realized there could be only one result for me if I continued exposed in flank. So I tore a lantern from its hook and flung it on the floor. The burning oil vaulted forth a cloud of thick black smoke, and under cover of this I changed my position, gaining the protection of another pillar. Here I was safe from Sandra; but her brother knew where I was and our duel continued. It was no steady stream of bullets, but a pot shot whenever one of us thought he saw an opportunity. All around us others were doing the same thing, and the vaulted roof rang to the reports, while the arid fumes of the powder and the smoke from broken lamps stung the eyes. And outside the thunder was pealing and the lightning splitting the heavens and Nikka's men and Nikka's gypsies were trying their feeble best to rival nature's forces.

Suddenly, I sensed that our opponents were bracing for a combined effort. There was a rapid exchange of exclamations in the thieves' French and Tziganes dialect they used for confidential communication. I heard an empty cartridge clip jingle on the floor. But in the shifting of light and smoke it was impossible now to tell real men from the shadows. I snuck my head around a pillar, crouched and slipped aside. Then, while I was unprotected, the rush came.

"Go!" called Miller's voice.

The shadows were pricked with pistol flashes. Serge Vassilievich leaped for the pillar behind which I had stood, his gun blazing, knife in hand. He did not see me, on my knees, four feet to the right, and I put my first bullet in his thigh. He stopped as if a giant's hand had been shoved against his breast, tottered and fell backward. As he fell, one of the burning oil pools ignited a bundle of blankets, and the rising flames sketched us both clearly against the darkness that shrouded the far end of the room.

There was a scream. I recognized Sandra's voice, but I could not see her. Instead, I saw Helmi Bey speaking to Watkins, who was holding back Tontou. I drove the Levantine away with my first shot. Then the hammer clicked, and I knew the magazine was empty. I dropped to my knee again, thinking I was concealed by a patch of shadow, and tumbled for a fresh elp. But the treacherous light flared upward, the shadow disappeared, and I was left defenseless. I saw a raging figure, half dying, pistol raised, running at me. I saw the pistol flash, felt a numbing blow on my shoulder and tumbled in a heap.

For a second my eyes misted, the room danced before me. Then I heard a chatter of Russian and Watkins, mildly disapproving.

"None of that 'ere, miss. If you please, now! I don't want to hurt you, but—"

For a second my eyes misted, the room danced before me. Then I heard a chatter of Russian and Watkins, mildly disapproving.

"None of that 'ere, miss. If you please, now! I don't want to hurt you, but—"

I looked up. Sandra, her face contorted with demonic rage, her empty pistol slinking in her hand, was backing away before Watty's menacing crouch.

A woman screamed again, horribly, so that it rasped your heart-strings. It was Maude Miller. She stood, with hands clutching her cheeks, her gaze on the center of the room where Monty staggered against a pillar, the blood from a punctured lung gurgling in his throat, bravely trying for the first time to raise the smoking muzzle of his automatic.

Hugh, relieved of the Englishman's attack, was taking pot shots at Tontou and Helmi. I saw Nikka slip through the door into the rain, and as Vernon King ran up the stairs from the atrium Helmi followed the Tziganes and Tontou jumped through a window, squawling like the big cat he was. Behind me Watkins was scientifically rapping Sandra, hand and foot, regardless of the curses she spat in three languages. Vassilievich had failed from the pul of his wound. Maude Miller sat on the dry floor, under the single wobbling lantern that remained intact, and cradled the head of her dying husband. We had swept the house of the married.

Or had we? As I tried unsuccessfully with one hand to reload my pistol, I felt a pressure at my back. I turned and very nearly impaled myself on a long knife blade. A tense, willowy figure, bare-footed and tumble-haired, stood over me.

"You are Jakko," said Kara in the Tziganes dialect—I could understand simple phrases after my experience with Nikka's tribespeople. "Where is Nikka?"

Unfounded, I pointed to the courtyard. She glided toward the door, but Hugh intervened.

"Not so fast," he said. "Whose friend are you?"

"She did not understand him, and raised her knife."

"She's all right, Hugh," I called. "She's trying to find Nikka—must have been asleep upstairs. Let her go."

But she did not wait for him to stand aside. With a single leap, she put one of the pillars between him and herself, and vaulted from the window Tontou had escaped by.

"Nothing slow about that girl," said Hugh. "I've got her!"

A pistol cracked in the doorway, and the bullet sang by his ear.

"They're still after us," he commented.

Needless Pain!

The man who wouldn't drive his motorcar half a mile when it's out of order, will often drive his brain all day with a head that's throbbing.

Such punishment isn't very good for one's nerves! It's unwise, and it's unnecessary. A tablet or two of Bayer Aspirin will relieve a headache every time. So, remember this accepted antidote for pain, and spare yourself a lot of needless suffering. Read the proven directions and you'll discover many valuable uses for these tablets. For headaches; to check colds. To ease a sore throat and reduce the infection. For relieving neuralgia, neuritis, rheumatic pain.

People used to wonder if Bayer Aspirin was harmful. The doctors answered that question years ago. It is not. Some folks still wonder if it really does relieve pain. That's settled! For millions of men and women have found it does. To cure the cause of any pain you must consult your doctor; but you may always turn to Bayer Aspirin for immediate relief.

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monocaceticacid of Salicylicacid

Twelve Years Mayor and Going Strong!

WHEN a man who has been mayor of a big city for twelve years finds out how to live, his words are worth listening to. Ex-Mayor E. N. Kirby of Abilene, Texas, discovered the simple way to health about ten years ago (he is now 64.)

"I am now a new man, and as active as a boy," says Mr. Kirby. "I feel fine all the time and rarely have an ache or a pain, although for twenty-five years I suffered with rheumatism, and sometimes was unable to stand or walk. I would not give up my simple health discovery—no, not for five thousand dollars in gold!" That discovery was Nujol!

That's the wonderful thing about Nujol. Although it is not a medicine and contains absolutely no drugs, its harmless internal lubrication seems to make people feel better and look on the brighter side of life, whether they are old or young.

Of course you can understand why this is so: we all of us have natural poisons in our bodies that make us feel headachy, sick and low in our minds. Nujol, which is as tasteless and colorless as pure water, helps to absorb these and carry them away, easily, regularly as clock work.

Instead of drugging and irritating your body with pills, cathartics, laxatives, and other habit-forming drugs, give your body the internal lubrication which it needs, just as much as any other machine. After a few days you will be surprised at the difference in the way you feel. You can get Nujol in a sealed package in any drug store. Nujol may change your whole outlook on life. Get a bottle today and give yourself a chance to be well!

Hon. E. N. Kirby, for twelve years Mayor of Abilene, Texas, who has discovered secret of success.

A man considers life a grind—if his grind isn't worth grinding.

People are thankful for paying their debts—so many don't pay.

When BABIES are upset

Baby ills and ailments seem twice as serious at night. A sudden cry may mean colic. Or a sudden attack of diarrhea—a condition it is always important to check quickly. How would you meet this emergency—tonight? Have you a bottle of Castoria ready? There is nothing that can take the place of this harmless but effective remedy for children; nothing that acts quite the same, or has quite the same comforting effect on them.

For the protection of your own peace of mind—keep this old, reliable preparation always on hand. But don't keep it just for emergencies; let it be an everyday aid. Its gentle influence will ease and soothe the infant who cannot sleep. Its mild regulation will help an older child whose tongue is coated because of sluggish bowels. All druggists have Castoria; the genuine bears Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper.

HOW TO LIVE LONGER

By JOHN CLARENCE FUNK
A. M., Sc. D.

Director of Public Health Education,
State of Pennsylvania.

You Are You

A HIGHLY educated man of fifty-two years of age while reading his morning newspaper crumpled up in a heap and promptly expired. The obituary columns were exceedingly flattering and mentioned his many notable and scientific achievements. What they did not say, however, was that in spite of all his book learning he was far from being a wise man.

As a keen observer he was very definitely trained. But for some inexplicable reason he did not apply this gift to his own body. Yet he would have been almost insulted and any one intimated to him that he was not living a sensibly healthy life. As a matter of fact, this unfortunate gentleman lived by rule. He ate, slept, bathed and exercised according to the book. His body was magnificently disciplined. But the point he failed to see, was that it was the other fellow's discipline.

If human bodies were made in factories and could therefore be tested for standardized stresses and strains, then perhaps it would be all right to set up rigid rules governing health activities to be strictly followed by one and all alike. However, nature is not made that way at all.

It seems scarcely necessary to indicate that there are thousands of things people can do which every one well knows are harmful. But then again there seem to be many other things that some people can do harmlessly which naturally damage other people.

Inhaled tobacco, cold baths, coffee and even sleep and exercise develop different reactions in different people. It therefore behooves every one carefully to study the bodily response to one's living habits. And this, without over emphasized reference to the effect upon others.

Within a limited extent, every individual is a law unto himself. That is the one thing to remember in connection with this fascinating game of living. Get acquainted with yourself and govern yourself accordingly. You are you!

Forgetting

IT HAS often been said that memory is the real power of great men. Certainly it has played an important part in the lives of many of the world's outstanding figures. And perhaps the opposite is equally true. Forgetfulness is a monstrous handicap to overcome and is one of the main reasons for failure.

Fortunately a poor memory can be noticeably improved. Contrarily a good memory, in some particulars, can deteriorate, or at least, it can be detoured.

As an example of this point, not long ago a brilliant lawyer, known the country round for his amazing memory, died. At the time of his death he was but fifty-four years old. But for the fifteen years prior to his decease he had so forgotten the sensible methods of living as to consume a pint of whisky daily; to eat enough food for three average men; to smoke fifteen cigars a day; to sleep only six hours each night and to avoid fresh air and exercise altogether. It therefore naturally followed as an inevitable result that he actually forgot to live!

It is bad enough to lack a good memory, but no matter how weak it may happen to be, it is sufficiently strong not to forget that:

- 1.—Enough, rather than too much food, is one of the secrets of longevity.
- 2.—The body was made for daily exercise, therefore requires it and suffers if deprived of it.
- 3.—Adequate sleep in a properly ventilated room is a necessary requirement.
- 4.—The annual physical examination will promptly discover insidious disease onerous.
- 5.—Brains, money, position and fame amount to nothing if health is lost.

Therefore, whether the possessor of a good or bad memory, don't forget these things. One is dead a sufficient long time without hastening the day through forgetfulness.

Hesitant Great Foe

of Forward Movement

On being questioned as to whether the congregation with which he was identified had started to build a new church, a typically careful Scotchman guardedly replied, "Well, no, not exactly that; but we are beginning to think about starting to commerce." Are not such words descriptive of the attitude some of us assume in regard to the building of our characters and our lives? Often we hesitate to commit ourselves in a definite way to a specific forward movement, desirable though it may be. It may be the dread of criticism on the part of friends and associates; it may be a distrust in our own power and ability, or possibly it may be the fear of sacrifice that deters us. As a consequence, we are still down on the lower levels of life, talking, perhaps, about what we expect to do, but never really doing it. The best we can say of ourselves is that "we are beginning to think about starting to commerce." Why not get to work?—Great Thoughts.

New-type Flour Banishes "Luck" in Baking

They use a new-type flour for all baking purposes—GOLD MEDAL "Kitchen-tested" Flour—that simplifies baking remarkably and banishes the cause of most baking failures. Failures, experts found, were mostly due to the fact that two sacks of the same flour often acted differently, even with the same recipe... it was not uniform in even action. Sonow all GOLD MEDALS "Kitchen-tested" before it comes to you. As each batch comes through the mill it is tested by actual baking—bread, cakes, biscuits.
